STEELWORKERS REACH TENTATIVE AGREEMENT WITH CONIFER

Prince George, B.C. - After over a year of bargaining, a tentative agreement has finally been reached between CONIFER and the United Steelworkers Union.

CONIFER is an industry association that employs around 2-thousand Steelworkers members in the North, including in Prince George, Mackenzie, and Burns Lake.

Steelworkers spokesman Bob Matters says the tentative four-year agreement provides wage increases in the third and fourth year.

He says there's also improvement concerning some of the language surrounding seniority retention and plant closures.

Members will vote on the contract in the next few weeks.

At least 50-percent of the membership needs to be on side for the agreement to be ratified.
